Program Information at a Glance

The Department is designed to give students a solid foundation for building critical and cultural awareness as well as to open unfamiliar worlds and exciting new ways of thinking about humanities. As an English Major, students will also learn communication and language skills that are applicable across disciplines. The focus areas involve: critical reading, critical writing and critical thinking. The department tries to develop in students not only basic communication skills in the lingua franca of the world, but also in other key areas necessary both to intellectual and professional advancement: humanistic content, analysis, argumentation, rhetoric, stylistics and so on. These broad offerings to all students make the department one of the major nodal points in the University's Liberal Arts curriculum.

The Department's courses are not confined to traditional disciplinary boundaries, but are open to inter- and cross-disciplinary offerings. This dynamic approach allows students to develop skills and sensibilities vitally required by modern English language and literature teachers and by people across professional fields: communications and media, business and marketing, and so on.

The Department of English and Humanities (DEH) is committed in its holistic vision to impart an education to students which combines language skills with literary sensibilities so that graduates become competent and responsible citizens of the world.

Department Facilities

Practical Learning

Participation in the student clubs such as the Paper Canoe - ULAB Literary Society, ULAB Theatre Club, and the Language Club allow students to develop their leadership and professional skills. The department student-led magazine MUSE (Mouthpiece of the ULAB Students of English) is run by the students, allowing them to gain experience in writing, designing, editing, collaborating, and publishing.

Industry Linkage

Students register for internships to avail opportunities for networking and building relationships with industry professionals, applying the learned professional and language skills at organizations such as ActionAid Bangladesh, Ekattor TV, The Daily Star, Banglalink, New Age, Kahinik Audiobook, the American Center, and other institutions. Alumni seminars and workshops allow students to share their scholarship and receive hands-on guidance on professional and research skills needed for success.

Apprenticeship Programs

Teaching assistantships, peer mentoring at the English Zone, working as instructors for speaking and listening classes, volunteering at events such as conferences, and participation in faculty grant and research projects allow students to develop teaching skills, analytical skills, critical skills, and leadership skills, improve their written and oral communication skills, as well as foster interest in conducting academic research.
